The Nance Case—Federal vs. State Judiciary.

Some years before the war, the defendant, Thory H. Nance, was appointed guardian of the plaintiffs James P. McCabe and his sisters and in virtue of this appointment, got all of their property into his hands and wasted or applied it to his own purposes. Since the war and after they became of age, the defendants brought a suit in chancery for the purpose of recovering from Nance their estate, and obtained a decree against him for the money in his hands, due to and of which he had deprived them; but they could not sue out executions on account of the stay law. The decree (which operated as a lien on his hands) they had entered on the lien docket so as to make it effective against all others. After this, Nance filed a petition in the Federal court, and had himself prosecuted as a bankrupt, and was declared a bankrupt and made an assignment of all of his estate and effects to an assignee—whereby, among other things, he conveyed his land subject to the lien on it. The creditors, who had liens on the land, were not concerned before the bankruptcy court, nor did they attempt to set them up in that forum. The assignee under a decree of the bankruptcy court, sold the land subject to the lien on it, and it was bought by a friend of Nance, at the price of $500, for his wife, at a mere nominal price (the lien on the land amounting to more than its value) in order that he might retain the possession. Nance was afterwards by a decree of the bankruptcy court, discharged, except those due in a fiduciary character—and those due to McCabe and his sisters were of this class and came under this exception. After his discharge and others brought a suit in chancery to subject the land of Nance to the liens existing on it before he had himself declared a bankrupt, from which it could not be discharged by the bankruptcy court. Nance and his assignee were regularly made parties to this suit and process duly served on them and no objection made to the jurisdiction of the court, nor any question made as to the right of the lien creditors to proceed to enforce their liens upon the land in the State court. A decree was passed directing a commissioner to take an account of the liens on the land, with their relative priorities, in order that the same might be sold and its proceeds properly distributed among the lien creditors, under which, after due notice to Nance and his assignee and all the other parties, an account was taken and a report of it made to the court. To this report neither Nance nor his assignee took any exception, and a decree was made in conformity therewith (without any objection filed either by Nance or his assignee), directing the land to be sold to pay the debts due from Nance to McCabe's heirs and other lien creditors. Under this decree the land was sold and Nance became the purchaser but failed to give the security required by the decree. Upon his failure to comply with the terms of sale the land was resold and another person became the purchaser, who did comply with the terms of sale.

Upon this Nance applied to the Judge of the U. S. District court, which had already exhausted all the jurisdiction it had assumed in relation to the land, for an injunction to the proceedings in the Circuit court of Bedford county, a court of competent jurisdiction, upon the pretence that he was entitled to an exemption of $500 out of the land, and asked the bankruptcy court to take the land (in which he, Nance, had no interest whatever, for he had already conveyed all of his interest in it to his assignee) and sell it and give him $500 of its proceeds, and strange as it may appear to a lawyer, or any man of the least appreciation of fairness and justice, the judge of that court granted the injunction and appointed Nance a special messenger or deputy marshal to execute the process in his own case. He served it on the parties to the suit and commissioners to sell the land during the term of the court to which they were to report, and they brought the matter to the notice of the court in their report of the sale. The Circuit court of course disregarded the injunction, confirmed the sale and made a rule against Nance to show cause why he should not be attached for his contempt to the authority and jurisdiction of the courts of the State in attempting to withdraw the case from the State court, to whose jurisdiction he had submitted without objection. Upon the return of the rule, Nance still persisting in his effort to subvert the authority of the State courts and to carry the case to the Federal courts, was enjoined from prosecuting his injunction there and fined for his contempt and imprisoned until he should dismiss his injunction. It appearing by H. H. Wells of Richmond, and aided by him in obtaining the injunction, a rule was made against Wells, also returnable to the next term. After this, Nance, instead of appealing to a judge of a Virginia court, applied to J. C. Underwood, the judge of the United States District court, for a writ of habeas corpus, who granted it and discharged Nance. At the next term of the Circuit court of Bedford (May last) a new rule was made against Nance for failing to surrender the land to the purchaser, and for his continued contempt in attempting to hinder and prevent the execution of the decree of the Circuit court through the instrumentality of the Federal court. He appeared and intimated that he would dismiss his injunction if time was allowed him—the Federal court, as it was said, was not then in session. Upon this an order was made providing that he might have thirty days to dismiss his injunction, and that if he did not do so within that time, he should be attached until he did, and his fine should be doubled.

Wells answered to the rule against him, which showed that he was a practising lawyer at the time he aided and advised Nance to apply to the Federal court for the injunction; that I knew that the matter had been disposed of and decreed upon in the State in which Nance was a regular party, whose decreed bound him until it was appealed from a reversal, and as a lawyer, he knew, or ought to have known, that it was a contempt to court to resist the decree thus obtained, either by direct or indirect means and he (Wells) was therefore fined—Nance, for some reason, changed his mind and let the thirty days expire without dismissing his injunction. At the expiration of the time he was again attached and put in jail. He again applied to Underwood for a habeas corpus, and notwithstanding Nance is now in the Western District of Virginia, over which Underwood has no jurisdiction, yet he has granted the writ. Nance, taken from the jail in Richmond, will have to be carried right by the residence of Judge Rives (the Judge of the Western District), at Charlottesville, to Alexandria, on the extreme border of the State, to Underwood, who will discharge him again, notwithstanding he has no authority over the case, and no lawful right to do it even if the parties were in his district, as will abundantly appear by the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States, from Toby Watkins' case down to that of Jeter Phillips. There can be no other reason for the application to Underwood rather than to Rives, who was so much more convenient, than that it was known that whatever he may be said of Rives, he knows some law, and has some regard to justice and decency and is not utterly void of shame.

It is thus seen that by the unwarrantable intervention of Underwood, and his co-operation with Nance in this matter, the wards of the latter are deprived of their property, which it was his duty to guard and protect, and he is kept in possession of land which was probably bought with their means, held by him as their guardian, while they are swindled and left to starve.

This is the more to be wondered at, as the debts due to these wards could not be affected by any decree in a bankruptcy court, and as the property that might be retained or set apart to him under that law would be liable for the debt; and even if it was such a case as the bankruptcy court could act upon, Underwood himself had already decided, in the cases of Peter Saunders and Jno. J. Saunders, in his court at Richmond, that a bankrupt could not have his exemption set apart out of land. What further action Judge Wingfield of the Circuit Court of Bedford will take remains to be seen.—Richmond Whig.

Persons ruined by Ignorant, Trifling Pretenders and their Deadly Poison, should apply immediately.
DR. JOHNSTON
Member of the Royal College of Surgery of London, Graduate of one of the most eminent Colleges in the United States, and the greatest part of whose life has been spent in the hospitals of London, Paris, Philadelphia and elsewhere, has effected some of the most astonishing cures that were ever known; many troubled with ringing in the head and ears when asleep, great nervousness, being alarmed at sudden sounds, bashfulness, with frequent blushing, attended sometimes with derangement of mind, were cured immediately.

TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE.
Dr. J. addresses all those who have injured themselves by improper indulgence and solitary habits, which ruin both body and mind, unfitting them for either business, study, society or marriage.
These are some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by the early habits of youth, viz: Weakness of the Back and Limbs, Pains in the Head, Dimness of Sight, Loss of Mental Power, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsia, Nervous Irritability, Derangement of the Digestive Functions, General Debility, Symptoms of Consumption, &c.
MENTALLY.—The fearful effects on the mind are much to be dreaded. Loss of Memory, Confusion of Ideas, Depression of Spirits, Evil Forebodings, Aversion to Society, Self Distress, Love of Solitude, Timidity, &c., are some of the evils produced.
Thousands of persons of all ages can now judge what is the cause of their declining health, losing their vigor, becoming weak, pale, nervous and emaciated, having a singular appearance about the eyes, cough and symptoms of Consumption.

YOUNG MEN
Who have injured themselves by a certain practice, already described, a habit frequently learned from evil companions or at school, the effects of which are nightly felt, even when asleep, and if not cured, renders marriage impossible, and destroys both mind and body, should apply immediately.
What a pity that a young man, the hope of his country, the pride of his parents, should be snatched from all prospects and enjoyment of life by the consequence of deviating from the path of nature, and indulging in pernicious habits. Such persons must, before contemplating MARRIAGE.
Reflect that a sound mind and body are the most necessary requisites to promote conjugal happiness. Indeed, without these the journey through life becomes a weary pilgrimage, the prospect hourly darkens to the view, the mind becomes shadowed with despair, and filled with the melancholy reflection that the happiness of another is blighted with our own.
DISEASE OF IMPURITUDE.
When the misguided and imprudent votary of pleasure finds that he has imbibed the seeds of this fatal disease, it too often happens that an ill-timed sense of shame or dread of discovery deters him from applying to those who, from education and respectability, can alone befriend him, delaying till the constitutional symptoms of this horrid disease makes their appearance, such as ulcerated sore throat, diseased nose, nocturnal pains in the head and limbs, dimness of sight, deafness, nodes on the shin bones and arms, blotches on the head, face and extremities, prostration of the constitution, till at last the palate of the mouth is the bones of the face become a horrid object of commiseration till death puts a period to his dreadful suffering, by sending him to an undiscovered country "from whence no traveller returns."
It is a melancholy fact that thousands die victims to this terrible disease through falling into the hands of ignorant or unskillful PRETENDERS, who, by the use of that deadly Poison, Mercury, &c., destroy the constitution, and incapable of curing, keep the unhappy sufferer month after month taking their noxious and injurious compounds, and instead of being cured, are sent to a premature grave, and leave him with ruined health to sigh over his galling disappointment.
